

ABSTRACT

A method of powder coating thermo powder resins to non-conductive plastic substrates, in particular, to polyamide materials and other non-conductive plastic substrates. After cleaning the substrate, a water-based adhesive/primer is applied to the substrate and then cured to increase the surface conductivity of the substrate to provide to better coating of the thermosetting powder to the substrate during curing.